MUDFIGHT

It was a dark day we were planning an attack on the parents like a bunch of soldiers. When Whaea Tania said charge we attacked like an army. The oozy mud slowed me down I tripped and fell. I felt like the mud was playing dirty tricks on me. I got a big slimey mud ball and hurled it to the parents like a baseball.

I camouflaged like a chameleon, I was a spider crawling in the mud then suddenly... strike! Someone had grabbed the back of my head and smooshed me in the mud! I got up and to my excitement someone tackled me like a bulldozer.

It was the end of the chaos I was slowly walking then... crack! I wasn't sure what I stepped on but I checked my toe to see blood gushing out like a blood fountain. I had to go back to camp but also missing the after photo. When I got there I got treated.

The mud wars

A mud fight among kids, parents, and teachers was an exhilarating and bonding experience that breaks the usual boundaries between these groups. Imagine a bright, sunny day where the usual rules are suspended, and everyone comes together for some good, messy fun.

The air is filled with laughter and playful shouts as kids gleefully scoop up mud, launching it at their friends and even at daring teachers and parents who join in on the chaos. Parents and teachers, usually seen in more authoritative roles, find themselves covered in mud, their laughter echoing through the mud flats as they tackle each other in a friendly competition.

This event not only provides a unique opportunity for everyone to unwind but also strengthens community bonds, fostering understanding and camaraderie among students, teachers, and parents alike.

The mud fight

As I lept to the battle field like a warrior my heart beats like a set of drums. On your marks, get set.... CHARGE!!! The mud squealed as we clumped our way to the target zone. I picked up a HUGE clump of mud and spreaded it all through my dad's hair. I even stuck some into his ears.

After that I slid out of the target zone and Mandy washed my googles. I waddled into the target zone again like a penguin. Suddenly Briar came out of now where and takled me as I gazed up at her from the soft, smelly ground She smiled at me as I crawled out of the target zone to catch my breath.

Finally the mud fight had come to an end we took an after photo. We were all pigs! I told Casey that there was mud where the sun doesn't shine, we giggled a little at what I had just said. We picked up some of our stuff and started walkig back to camp it was a blast I told Casey, she agreed with me. When we got back to camp we hosed off and got into the warm hot showers.

Mud Fight

As I got thrown and tossed I felt like a giant chocolate river... but It didn't taste that nice. I felt like the mud was a slip and slide. I stepped on crabs and shells. Other people got cut and hurt.

We all did a before and after photo. We all walked back. I felt like a brick when it dried up. I was a zombie walking.

After we got to camp we got hosed off it was as cold as an ice cube. Then we had a nice warm shower then a disco.
